THE 1920'S FEEL

Built in 1921 by the tycoon Simon Benson, the Columbia Gorge Hotel quickly became known as the "Waldorf of the West." A magnificent villa perched on a scenic cliff, the Hotel offered sweeping views of the majestic Columbia River as well as the very finest accommodations and dining in the northwest. The hotel was a favored retreat for movie stars like Clara Bow, Rudolph Valentino and Shirley Temple, presidents like Roosevelt and Coolidge, and other social and political dignitaries. The Hotel continues to provide the same lush ambience and lavish service that has attracted the political and social elite for years.

HOOD RIVER

Explore the scenic city of Hood River. Located approximately one mile from the Columbia Gorge Hotel and Spa, this city has everything you need. Golf year round on one of the many golf courses. Go on a white water rafting adventure at Zoller's Outdoor Odyssey. Enjoy the Klickitat and Deschutes rivers. Fish for salmon, steelhead, trout, bass or walleye in one of the many rivers. Visit one of the largest aero and auto museums in the Pacific Northwest at WAAAM. These are just a few of the many activities located here in the Gorge.
